In general, it is estimated that AID will be ve supervision over the spending of about $2,500,000,000 anneally for the next five years, which outs it in the class of the Marshall Blan which was successful in the postwar rehabilitation of western Europe.

OPERATIONS by AID will be more extensive and complicated than those of the Marshall Plan under Paul G. Hoffman, the energetic administrator and supersalesman who recruited an exceptionally high type of Washi; ington and overseas officials tocarry out the program.

Much of the success of the new operation will depend on Hamilton's ability to perstade any of $22,500 a year Hamilton, when AID is set up. the income he has received from % his senior partnership in the Wall Street law firm of Cleary. Gottlieb, Steen & Hamilton, Mark 1
